Do not delay your settlement!

Although we hate to see you go, we want to help you with the sale of your home. This section reviews your responsibilities as the homeowner in selling your home.

Closing attorneys ask for certification from the Board of your home. What this means is the Board must verify that annual dues are up to date, no liens placed on the property by the board, there are no violations fees, and no violations of architectural guidelines that are apparent from a site survey of the home's exterior. Anything that is in violation of the architectural guidelines and was not approved by the Board can be "failed" and you will be required to be in compliance before settlement. This is why the use of the Architectural Review Form is so important—to ensure that exterior home improvements are within neighborhood guidelines and changes have been approved.

When you sell your house, you are required by law to provide the potential buyers with a resale disclosure packet prior to acceptance of the contract. The law requires certain documents and specific information to be included in this packet and we have designed our packet to meet all of these legal requirements. Once the prospective buyer receives the disclosure packet, the potential buyers have three days to cancel the contract. So, you will want to make sure you have your packet ready to provide to your buyers. Your agent can help you with the timing of your request because it will take about one or two weeks to complete the packet.

Complete the Resale Disclosure Packet Request and Pre-sale Compliance Inspection below.
